

Circuit Scribe Is For More Than Just Kids This Holiday Season!

Giving the gift of the Circuit Scribe this holiday season will definitely put you on the “Favorite List”! Circuit Scribe allows you to draw your own circuits while putting a fun twist on it for youngsters. When I ordered the Ultimate Kit, I had no idea what to expect. Boy, was I happy! There are tons of different ways to experiment with the included pieces. There is a very detailed information booklet that lays out lots of different scenarios. This is a learning toy, but not a boring toy. My oldest son really liked to incorporate a paperclip like the booklet suggested. He thought it was cool to see why that would work so well to complete the circuit.

And let’s not forget that this is play! I kind of felt like a mad scientist at first! Things started working, lighting up, buzzing, and I almost yelled, “1.21 gigawatts!”.

But seriously, this toy is made for many more age groups than just kids. I kept thinking that my grandfather and my father would love working on this with my kids. It’s something that I feel older people would love to get as a gift! My father-in-law worked in the army and when I showed him pictures and explained it to him, he cannot wait to play with all the pieces when he comes in town over the holidays to visit.

Truthfully, I’m still learning about it as I go, which I think is important as we grow older. We should all keep learning and exploring. After all, that’s what we teach our children, right? Making Circuit Scribe top on your list this gift-giving-season will definitely be a bright idea for the whole family!
