New York, NY (November 15, 2021) – Holidays conjure up memories of children, parents and grandparents gathered together playing games or doing puzzles as a family. Gifting an educational game or puzzle from eeBoo (eeBoo.com) will inspire creativity and curiosity today and because their products are so sturdily crafted of heavy recycled board, they can be handed down from family to family.

Curated from its large stock of eeBoo and Piece & Love Collections, this lifestyle brand has come up with its Top 5 Gift List to delight every loved person on your list. Gathering A Garden ($23.99) is a simple board game that develops basic skills like patience, counting and an understanding of different categories of fruits, vegetables, herbs, flowers and birds. It's the perfect game to bring the family together and invite bright blooms inside on winter days.

Practicing difficult skills can be woven into play. "The ability to reproduce the patterns becomes more challenging as the patterns get more and more complex, but this is tough fun that kids often enjoy," writes Oppenheim Toy Portfolio who awarded its prestigious 2021 Gold Seal for Challenges with Form and Color ($25.99). The judges added, "They will also like inventing their own patterns with the shapes. An excellent choice for kindergarteners and 1st and 2nd graders."

Make room for Piece & Love's 1000-piece Music In Montreal puzzle ($23.99) and collaborate as a family to complete this higher count jigsaw. This festive, snowy street scene with musicians, shoppers, lights, holly, just sings, 'tis the season."

Woodland Creatures ($23.99) 500-piece round puzzle was inspired by centuries-old Eastern European embroidery traditions. This beautifully illustrated puzzle by the Romanian artist Oana Befort will make a lovely gift for anyone on your list. Made with sustainable and recycled materials, printed with vegetable-based inks on FSC®-certified paper.
